Living in a UK flat

Finding a flat in the UK can be a lengthy process, not because there are a shortage of them but because you need to consider important factors such as location and public transport before moving in.

Most UK flats are fully furnished and apart from buying bedding you will not need to make many purchases before moving in.

Location, location, location

As always an important factor to look into before moving into a flat is the location, do some research about the area and ask your friends and/or colleagues their opinions.

The average travel time to get to work is about 45-60 minutes so being in close proximity to public transport will minimize the length of your working day.
